I object to all the proposed plans as:

1. It is penalizing those who care about their health, against those who do not as the former has to bear cost of the latter (directly or indirectly). These should be some kind of controls to ensure that there's no abuse by the latter.
2. The proposals will only benefit those working in the insurance or fund business as a large amount of the administration fee will go to them.
3. None of the proposed plans provide any details. However, the devils are in the details. Thus, it's impossible to make any decision on selecting which plan. It is also ridiculous that the details of the plans are not provided. Consider a real life example, can a staff make any proposals to his boss without providing any detail (and the details would be provided only after relevant plan is selected). No doubt, he will be fired.
4. The proposals only consider get money out of citizen's money, while ignoring means increase operations efficiency, cost reduction etc.
5. It seems that the government is releasing its obligation in providing health service to citizen. This is absolutely wrong.
