Subject Healthcare reform?

In the past I have attempted to communicate and to engage the HKSAR Government on issues of health care reform - but such is the attitude of the HKSAR Government and the medical industry that all communications are a one way street in which you dictate and we the Public is supposed to pay the bills for whatever treatment is dreamed up!

Why was the Harvard Report never released or made available in its full text? what was issued for general release was a Summary made by HKSAR Government - i.e. it may not have been fully reflected what the Harvard Report said. I read the full text and the Summary did not reflect the full nature of the Harvard Reports recommendations - so why now if the HKSAR Government does not listen to experts it employs (using tax payers money!) why should we the same public now listen or communicate with the HKSAR Government?

If you want to reform the HKSAR Health care system then please follow the Harvard Report recommendations!

Until and unless there is a more open, transparent & accountable system then there can NOT be any reform.

The way in which in HKSAR the medical profession controls the public funds for what they consider is "competent & accountable" health care (reflected by the mission statement of Hospital Association "competent & accountable" - when in fact it is neither!) shows that there is no open debate on reform.

Primary health care in HKSAR is often traditional medicines which people are paying out of pocket for - and this should be included within the "health care system".

In HKSAR the public has no chance of realizing "universal suffrage" and therefore they will ask for, and will receive, unrealistic benefits to pacify their unrealized rights. Everyone loses.

If you want the public to pay out of pocket then it must be for something of value - or the public will just continue to expect free healthcare!
