Dear Sir,

The baseline statistics is not generalized, the age range of 15 – 64 used for representing the working force is biased, e.g. as we all know that the retirement age for Government and HA staff is not 65, and it is also variable in the private sector, the misleading information leads to a gross miscalculation of the contribution. For my personal opinion, since most of the Health Finance Proposals involve contribution during the work life period, therefore the Government should first set a global retirement age in Hong Kong (this can have an impact on the size of working force as well) before a more accurate estimation can be made, leading the public can have a more appropriate choice

Best Regards,
Alice Choi
